Annual Sectarian Programming Certification

In June 2009, the PBS Board of Directors approved the application of PBS's nonpolitical, noncommercial and nonsectarian criteria to all channels or platforms offered by Member Stations that are branded PBS or contain PBS content. The Board also voted to allow PBS member stations that are offering sectarian content (e.g., a televised worship service) on their primary PBS channels as of June 16, 2009 to continue to do so, provided that they certify as such to PBS on an annual basis. Stations are not permitted to supplement or replace current sectarian programming with additional sectarian programming on any PBS channels.

The PBS Board strongly encourages stations that offer sectarian content on PBS channels to migrate this programming to non-PBS platforms or channels.

Please include below the titles of all programming that may be considered sectarian that your station is offering on a PBS-branded channel or channel that contains PBS programming. Coverage of a religious program, historically significant programming about religion, cultural (i.e., arts and entertainment) performances of a religious nature or other objective commentary presented in a religious venue (church, mosque, synagogue, temple, etc.) are not considered sectarian.

N/A

If you have any questions whether a program is considered sectarian, please contact Thomas Crockett (tcrockett@pbs.org) or Vanessa Butler (tvrockett@pbs.org).
